MEET TODAY'S
GRAND VIEW

In this issue, you will meet several Grand View students. By getting to know the students featured in this issue, you > will gain a sense of our entire student body.

> In many ways, our students today are similar to those who attended Grand View in our very early years. Our students come to Grand View filled with hopes and dreams, true ambition, real potential, and a commitment to making their mark in the world. Many of them come from working class homes and some have overcome significant challenges just to be here. Some are children of alumni; others are the first in their families to attend college. The primary difference between today's students and those first generations of GV Vikings is diversity. While those early students were mostly children and grandchildren of Danish immigrants living in a handful of Danish-American communities, today's students come from 34 states, 17 countries and a variety of ethnic backgrounds.

The challenges I and my administrative team face also are similar to those of our predecessors: keeping Grand View affordable to students of modest means while maintaining quality.

I believe we are indeed one of the most affordable options for students today. We now benchmark what our students pay relative to the cost of attending one of lowa's three state universities. This is what we have found...after grants and scholarships, 75 percent of 2013 full-time, residential Grand View freshmen paid tuition, fees, room and board that were comparable to or less than the published in-state prices at lowa's public universities.

Yet, that fact gets over-shadowed by media coverage of college costs and student debt, coverage that often includes several myths. The National Association of Independent Colleges and Universities has compiled data to dispel nine common myths about private, nonprofit higher education (http://www.naicu.edu/special_

An overview of the renovations that took place on Grand View's campus this summer. initiatives/nine_myths/).

"College costs are skyrocketing" is one of the assertions we hear regularly. Yet, data collected by the College Board this fall shows that the average inflationadjusted net tuition and fees (published tuition and fees minus grant aid from all sources and federal higher education tax benefits) at private colleges dropped eight percent from 2008-09 to 2013-14.

Another widely held view is that most college students graduate with more than $100,000 in loans. Yet the Postsecondary National Policy Institute's data show that:

- In 2012, 40% of borrowers

 (undergraduate and graduate students across all sectors of higher education) owed less than $10,000;
 70% owed less than $25,000; and 88% owed less than $50,000.
- Only 4 percent of all borrowers (undergraduate and graduate students across all sectors of higher education) owed more than $100,000.
- Average debt per borrower among all bachelor degree recipients at private colleges in 2011-12 was $29,900, compared to $25,000 at public colleges.

Grand View's statistics – both for student debt and for the trend in net price – would be in line with the national averages listed above. And we are fully committed to remaining affordable to our traditional base of students. In fact, our Board of Trustees made affordability one of our key strategic plan goals.

If you are reading this magazine, you most likely already are a friend and supporter of Grand View. You can help us in one important way: please help spread the word that Grand View is affordable. If, when you read about the students featured in this issue, you think of someone like them who is beginning that college search, let them know of our commitment to remaining affordable while providing a high quality educational experience.

Thank you!

AND WE KEEP GROWING, AND GROWING...

BY LACIE SIBLEY '07, EDITOR

In October, the GV Board of Trustees approved proceeding with the planning for the renovation of and an addition onto the Student Center. The Student Center is the capstone project of a 12plus year reinvestment in facilities that support campus community. During the past 12 years, we expanded athletic and student recreation space with the construction of the Johnson Wellness Center in 2001. We also built four new residence halls, which added 640 beds in a variety of living arrangements. This past summer, we completed the conversion of the former Grandview Avenue into a plaza and walkway, creating an outdoor gathering place for students, faculty and staff.

The Student Center will culminate efforts to recreate a vibrant residential campus environment. The new Student Center will centralize and update campus dining for the entire campus, residents and commuters alike. It will remain the home of student services, and will greatly expand informal and formal meeting spaces, allowing GV to host more group functions. It also will house the Viking Theatre (the renovation of which was completed this fall), the bookstore, student activity space, and our Communication department, which will bring student media into closer contact with students.

The building will sit, as it does now, on E. 14th Street, across from the Rasmussen Center, and next to the 236-bed L Apartments, which opened in 2012. It will have a profile that is closer to the street than the current building and will extend two stories. The position of the building will enable us to construct a skywalk across E.14th street connecting the new Student Center with the Rasmussen Center. We hope to be able to construct that skywalk at the same time as the Student Center. The total project will encompass more than 70,000 square feet, which will include the renovation of roughly 80% of the existing 34,000 sq.-ft. Student Center.

The Transformations Student Center Campaign has let our faculty and staff support exactly what they're passionate about - our students. The number of reasons for giving is diverse but all reflect a sincere belief in the work being done at Grand View. The daily interaction our faculty and staff have with our students helps shape our community and the impact it has on so many lives. As leaders on campus, who better to understand our students' needs, concerns and passions than those who are on campus with them? Who better to provide them with the support they deserve than those who see them every day of their college careers? This current Faculty/ Staff campaign set new records for giving. Seventy-five percent of full-time employees have given to the new capital campaign, totaling close to $325,000. This far exceeded the goal of $250,000.

If all goes as planned, the expanded/ renovated Student Center would be complete by the fall of 2015. Gv

ALUMNI SURVEY RESULTS

BY CAROL BAMFORD. VICE PRESIDENT FOR MARKETING

Nearly 900 alumni took the time to respond to our alumni survey this past summer. Thanks to all who responded and shared comments and observations with us. There were many suggestions that we are taking into account, and a few we've implemented already. For instance, Grand View transcripts can now be ordered online at www.grandview.edu > Alumni.

We'd like to share a brief snapshot of the survey results. Keep in mind that the respondents spanned several generations, from those who attended when GV was predominantly an institution catering to families of Danish descent to those who graduated a year ago. So here are some highlights.

- More than 80% are working in a field that is either directly or somewhat related to their major at GV.
- More than 30% have an advanced degree, and the vast majority engage in lifelong learning in some way or another.

 More than 75% felt that Grand View prepared them well for their first and/ or current job. And 90% felt they left GV with the knowledge and perspective needed for being fully engaged with life.

We asked for perceptions about how well their GV education enhanced abilities and skills in a number of specific areas that relate to our mission. While it's clear that GV has done a fine job of helping students learn to write, communicate, analyze and solve problems, it's apparent that our considerable strengths lie in the areas of critical thinking, teamwork, appreciating diversity, community engagement, and developing a commitment to lifelong learning, as well as the capacity to live life fully and wholly. Eighty percent agreed that their GV experience empowered them to fully use their academic preparation, skills, abilities, and passions to live a life of meaningful work and service.

Satisfaction levels with alumni communications, services and events were quite high, and the questions asking about additional alumni services and events yielded some helpful suggestions. Satisfaction with the total GV experience was at 92% (satisfied or very satisfied), and two-thirds fully agreed that GV is an excellent value.

What emerged from the survey in broad terms was a high level of satisfaction with GV, regardless of when the respondent attended, although there are some generational differences, and a portrait of an educated, engaged, aware, and highly productive group of alumni. The survey results made it quite clear that GV lives and fulfills its mission, which really hasn't changed much over the generations.

As time goes on, we intend to use the survey results to enhance communications and services to alumni and to inform future changes in our curriculum and student services. Again, thanks to all who participated. Gv

GV CO-SPONSORS DAHS CONFERENCE

BY LACIE SIBLEY '07, EDITOR

Grand View, along with the Danish American Heritage Society (DAHS), Danish American Archive and Library, and the Danish Immigrant Museum, sponsored the October DAHS conference, "Innovation, the Danish Way." Participants enjoyed three days of thought-provoking, challenging, and uplifting presentations from both Danish and American experts on innovation in a variety of areas, from energy and sustainability to culture and the arts.

They also enjoyed exhibits and tours, and toured Grand View, including the Danish Immigrant Archives.

Keynote speaker Søren Hermansen, director of the Energiakademiet (Energy Academy) on the Danish island of Samsø, is a key player in a social and scientific experiment – the effort to transform Samsø into Denmark's Renewable Energy Island. Hermansen is a recognized Danish expert in renewable energy.

Speakers included: Poul Bertelsen,

MSAADA Architects, speaking on innovations in design and social mission; Henrik Klinge Jacobsen, senior researcher at DTU–the Technical University of Denmark, on innovation in environmental economics; and Nete Schmidt, Scandinavian studies, University of Wisconsin, on innovation in popular culture. Former U.S. Ambassador to Denmark Laurie Fulton presented the banquet address.

Søren Hermansen, keynote speaker at the conference, explains what he and his community are doing with renewable energy in Denmark.

GLOBAL VISION WEEK

BY LACIE SIBLEY '07, EDITOR

Grand View's fourth annual Global Vision Week kicked off September 16 focusing on our relationships, past and present, with Southeast Asia. This included activities to help us understand our history, through guest lectures, films, and discussions about what we did and did not learn from the Korean and Viet Nam wars. Additional activities focused on the present day business environment in Asia, with discussions on trade between Iowa and China, and how businesses maintain the delicate balance of doing business with Chinese companies when our nation's relationship with that country is strained. A study abroad fair and annual Meals from the Heartland event rounded out the week.

The campus participated in a school supply drive for Cattell Elementary School. The GV community was also invited to a lunch and learn presentation by Dr. Charles Day, a guiding teacher of the Des Moines Meditation and Mindfulness group. The week included classroom visits from founder and CEO of ABC Virtual Communications, B.J. Do; manager of the International Office, Business Division of the Iowa Economic Development Authority, Kathy Hill; and senior Des Moines police officer, Doua Lor, who also presented a lunch and learn sharing his personal story as a refugee from Laos and his outreach work with the Asian community.

Students participated in a hunger banquet simulating the real distribution of food in the world and bringing awareness to global poverty. The banquet included a facilitated presentation about world hunger, as well as a guest presenter, born in Thailand.

GV welcomed our first Albert Ravenholt Visiting Scholar, Ambassador Kenneth Quinn. Quinn is a former U.S. Ambassador to the Kingdom of Cambodia. He assumed leadership of the World Food Prize Foundation in January 2000, following his retirement from the State Department after a 32-year career

FACULTY & STAFF ACCOMPLISHMENTS

JAMES EWALD, assistant professor of art and design, had his paper, Researching Dyslexic Readers Through Graphic Novel Conventions: Pitfalls and Possibilities, accepted and presented by the International Association of Societies of Design Research in Tokyo.

MARY JONES, professor of art and design, was an artist in residence at Anchor Graphics, Columbia College, Chicago, in June. During the residency she produced a suite of seven intaglio prints titled, Lincoln Avenue: a Deep Map.

DR. MARK MATTES, professor of religion and philosophy, presented a lecture, The Afterlife, for the Ray Society. He also edited a book that was published by Vandenhoeck & Ruprecht entitled, Twentieth-Century Lutheran Theologians.

DR. MATTHEW E. PLOWMAN, associate professor of history, presented his paper, The Transfiguration of Sir Roger Casement: Anti-Imperialist, Nationalist, and Martyr in the 'German-Hindu' Conspiracy, at the Roger Casement (1864-1916): The Glocal Imperative conference in Tralee, Ireland.

JOSH RYTHER, associate professor of art and design, is the creative director for the Grand Rapids-based marketing firm Deksi; the organization opened a second office in Des Moines' East Village in June.

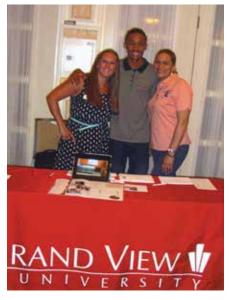

RACHEL SCHWALLER, assistant professor of art and design, is researching and creating a project entitled, DIY: Spirit Fingers, including both performance-based photographs and sculptural installations.

ADMISSIONS RECRUITS IN PUERTO RICO

BY LACIE SIBLEY '07, EDITOR

Last spring GV hosted more than 20 high school counselors from private Puerto Rican schools who were traveling throughout the Midwest. In August, GV sent one our own, Tina Miranda, assistant director of admissions, to Puerto Rico with a company called Autopista Americas – a leader in organizing and structuring recruiting tours. There were more than 50 other colleges and universities participating – mostly from the East Coast, Georgia, and Florida. The other lowa institutions that attended were lowa State, Loras, and Graceland.

Autopista Americas set up 29 high school visits around Puerto Rico, which included almost all the island regions and three extremely large regional college fairs, one in Ponce and two in San Juan. Each morning the group boarded a charter bus and traveled to the high schools to host mini college fairs, speaking with hundreds of Puerto Rican students during the ten days. The regional fairs were large and attracted thousands of families.

"It was such a great experience," Miranda said. "I spoke with almost 400 Puerto Rican students about the opportunity to come to Grand View. The students and families are excited about the opportunities that Grand View has to offer students and the success of our programs." GV

AARON TINDER, professor of art and design, had three recent works selected for inclusion in the Quincy Art Center's Biennial Quad-State Exhibit. The piece, Wonderful (And Other Songs), was awarded Best of Show in the exhibition.

ROBIN WHITE, professor of education, was appointed to the Council on Education Development, a state council that studies and recommends new statewide systems for evaluating lowa teachers and school administrators.

CYNDI WILEY, assistant professor of art and design, had a paper on an art and design app she developed with her design students accepted and presented by the International Association of Societies of Design Research in Tokyo. She also presented her pedagogical framework: Empathy, Connectivity, Authenticity, Trust, and Spirituality, at the national AIGA Design Educator's Conference in Minneapolis. GV

NURSING STUDENTS EXCEL IN NATIONAL EXAM

We are pleased to announce that Grand View nursing students performed exceptionally well on the March-June quarter National Council Licensure Examination (NCLEX). The pass rate statistics: nationwide – 83%; lowa – 82.1%; Grand View – 95.65%.

The NCLEX is an examination for the licensing of nurses in the United States. After graduating from a school of nursing, students take the NCLEX exam to receive a nursing license. A nursing license – granted by the state where the recipient met the requirements – grants permission to practice nursing.

MEET TODAY'S GRAND VI

OUR STUDENTS AND OUR CAMPUS HAVE CHANGED greatly over the years. Founded more than 100 years ago, Grand View offers a high-quality education to a diverse student body in a career-oriented, liberal arts-grounded curriculum at two campus locations. We welcome traditional students and adult learners representing a wide range of religious and cultural backgrounds. Today's student population is approximately 2,300, with more than 1,800 fulltime students. And while our campus continues to grow and our student residences continue to reach capacity, we still boast class sizes of approximately 17 students and a student to faculty ratio of 14:1. We have maintained that close-knit campus community quality and the family atmosphere past, present and future students have come to associate with Grand View. We also offer 40 majors and four master's degrees, as well as an abundance of clubs and organizations and 24 award-winning sports. Needless to say, we are very proud of our roots, where we have come from and where we are going. And we are extremely proud of our students and everything they continue to accomplish. We invite you to meet a few of our students, get to know them and their interests, and discover how much more GV has to offer.

JORDAN HENKENIUS, HEALTH PROMOTION MAJOR

JORDAN KNEW SHE WANTED TO HELP people in some way. She always had a game plan and knew the direction she wanted to go. After being accepted to Grand View, she researched and received the Grand View Director's Award — a four-year renewable scholarship based on academic achievements.

"GV has a wide range of scholarships available and when I was looking at other schools, they didn't have as many scholarship opportunities," Jordan said. "I did fine on the ACT but it was nice to find a scholarship that wasn't based solely on my ACT score."

Starting out as a nursing major, Jordan enjoyed her classes and felt academically challenged but began to feel like something was missing. She was three years into the nursing program when she started to question her path

"I'm a really stubborn person, and the GV nursing program is great, but I started to realize that maybe nursing wasn't for me. I got nervous about changing majors," Jordan said.

Jordan did some soul-searching and dived deeper into the health and wellness area. She spoke with wellness faculty, her advisor, the campus wellness director, and even job shadowed in different areas of the wellness field.

"I found my passion in health and wellness and preventative care, working one-on-one with people to help them make healthier choices," Jordan said. "I finally went to my advisor and changed my major. It will only take me one extra semester to complete my health promotion degree."

Internships are a major part of the Grand View experience. Being in the heart of Des Moines, Grand View has many connections in the metro area for internship and job shadowing experiences. After changing her major, Jordan needed more field experience for her resume and internship requirements. With Grand View's metro location, Jordan found an internship with the American Heart Association, which opened her eyes to even more possibilities. She helped organize the Heart Ball, organizing volunteers and assisting with the planning of wellness events. Jordan took a part-time position with Physiotherapy Associates – which will transition to full-time after graduation. She is instructing exercise classes at several locations and will oversee a new weight loss program for clients needing knee and hip replacements.

"I'm really glad I took the plunge and switched my major to follow my passion," Jordan said. "Grand View made it effortless and helped me make sure this was the right decision for me before moving forward with it."

Jordan was also very involved on campus. She was the Viking Volunteers president for three years. As a freshman, she knew she wanted to participate in service opportunities, and at that time, the club was just beginning to grow. She jumped right into a leadership position and began to market the club on campus. During her sophomore year she took the club president role and started to build the group, making it larger and more involved. Viking Volunteers participated in many service projects including Habitat for Humanity, Big Brothers/Big Sisters, The Giving Tree, Meals from the Heartland, Luther Park, and more in the Des Moines area.

WITH A DESIRE TO TRULY UNDERSTAND mathematics, Ake welcomed Grand View's small classes and one-on-one relationships with our faculty. He didn't feel like a number. In fact, he developed close relationships with his instructors and soon realized he could go directly to them with questions rather than through a graduate assistant – GV doesn't have those!

"I like that my classes average about 15 students," Ake said. "And I've really gotten to know my professors on a personal level. They not only know my name, but they know me – who I am and what my interests are."

Being an older fulltime day student, Ake has different interests and viewpoints than some of his classmates. However, he has found ways to get involved and make connections through the Math Club, of which he was the Social Chair, and the Math Modeling Contest – a national contest where students have two days to solve a problem using the skills and knowledge they have gained throughout their college careers.

"As a student, you get frustrated when you start to wonder why or how this will apply to your life after college," Ake said. "But at GV you actually feel comfortable asking the why questions. The professors always have an answer... whether it's from their own experience as instructors or their lives outside the classroom, or from professionals in the field you're studying – there is a reason. That's one of the best things about learning – asking questions and discovering that there is a reason we are doing these things."

In addition to mathematics, Ake also found his niche with photography and video. He's been developing his photo skills for several years, starting with his family's old Minolta camera. For him, photos and video melded into one another, and he started to dip his toes into digital video.

"In high school, rather than saving up for a nice car to drive, I saved for nice camera equipment. So while most of my classmates had nice cars, I drove an old van and had a really nice camera," Ake laughs.

That tradeoff has come in very handy. Not only has Ake continued to fine-tune his photo and video skills, he's also landed several paid freelance opportunities.

RACHEL DACHENBACH, ELEMENTARY EDUCATION & MUSIC MAJOR

RACHEL WALKED ONTO THE GRAND VIEW CAMPUS for a visit and knew immediately this was the place for her.

"I heard about Grand View from the time I was very little. We went to a Lutheran church and our pastor was a GV grad," Rachel said. "I didn't like the idea of a big school; I wanted smaller classes and the opportunity to be involved in many things, and when I came for a visit it felt like my home away from home."

Rachel received a music scholarship and got involved with choir and band. She enjoys the constant interaction the band and choir have on campus, performing at campus events such as homecoming, honors convocation and commencement. She also assists with music scholarship auditions and creates connections with new students, much like she did during her own audition day.

"To put a face with a name and know at least one person when you are new to campus makes starting this part of your life a little less daunting," Rachel said. "I like that I can do that for others."

As a choir member, Rachel enjoyed the opportunity to go on the annual spring music tour, which travels internationally every four years. She has traveled to the west coast, toured throughout the Midwest, and overseas to Denmark and Germany.

"It was one of the coolest experiences I've had," Rachel said. "Not only did we go to these places and perform, but we were ambassadors for our school, our state and our country. We stayed with host families, which was very unique and something I will never forget."

As a Philip Hougen Scholar, Rachel is involved with campus ministries and proud of the club's outreach to the campus. They minister to all students, and the campus pastor is a presence for everyone, from athletes to fine arts students to science majors...everyone.

Grand View offers two honors programs, one of which is LOGOS. LOGOS is an invitation-only honors program designed to refine your critical thinking, examine your beliefs and test your values.

"LOGOS is the best experience that I've had at GV," Rachel said. "In fact, as a class, we were kind of sad on the last day. It's a lot of work but the results are so rewarding."

There is no test, just a book that students read and then dive into a conversation about the content and the questions it brings forward. Rachel formed strong bonds with her LOGOS peers and felt comfortable putting her ideas and opinions out for discussion.

Rachel also represents Grand View as a Presidential Ambassador. This invitation-only program is available to selected incoming freshmen to help them develop leadership skills through meetings and personal interactions with GV President Kent Henning and the Board of Trustees. Presidential Ambassadors are involved in various activities and seminars on and off campus, and network with Des Moines community leaders.

MAYRA ALARCON, SPANISH FOR CAREERS AND PROFESSIONALS & STUDIO ARTS MAJOR

BECAUSE OF GRAND VIEW'S 40-PLUS CLUBS and organizations, Mayra had a plethora of experiences waiting for her when she transferred to Grand View. Starting out in a large university, she quickly decided she wanted a more personal college education that was closer to home.

Once on the GV campus, she quickly learned how easy it is to get involved. She also realized that her campus organization experiences would not only benefit her as a student but also build her resume.

"My extra-curricular activities help me stand out and provide me with opportunities to meet people with similar interests. I've started to develop a networking system as a student, which will help me when I'm looking for jobs," Mayra said. "Being involved gives me something to look forward to in my busy week, and I've benefited a lot by improving my leadership and communication skills, while developing many friendships." Mayra enjoys helping others and gaining leadership experience. She is a tutor and a multicultural ambassador.

"I have received notes from those I've tutored thanking me for my patience and positive attitude. It is refreshing to know I'm making a small but powerful impact on someone's education."

As a multicultural ambassador with the Diversity Alliance club, Mayra has sharpened her leadership, oral and written communication skills. She has assisted with student recruitment and diversity initiatives, which have provided her with useful knowledge and experience for a lifetime. Diversity Alliance promotes and values the diversity inherent within the Grand View campus. The group organizes campus-wide events, including the annual Multicultural Fair, awareness projects, and the Martin Luther King, Jr. Day celebration. She credits her team involvement with helping to overcome her fear of public speaking and to venture out and try new experiences.

TODD NIELSEN, GRAPHIC DESIGN

WITH GRAND VIEW'S DANISH heritage and Todd's Danish family roots, a study abroad experience to Denmark was the ideal fit.

"I have deep Danish history – my mother's grandparents and my dad's great-greatgrandparents all emigrated to America from > Denmark," Todd said. "I always wanted to visit the country. My sister traveled there when she was 17, and my mom visited when she was 17 also."

> > Grand View offers shortterm faculty-sponsored study trips and summer programs, as well as semester or yearlong study experiences.

Through Grand View's partnership with the Danish

GV magazine

CHAD LOWMAN, SPORT MANAGEMENT MAJOR

FOR CHAD, DES MOINES IS HOME. As a wrestler, he attended an NAIA Division I school for two years and then transferred to Grand View. It was the best decision he's made.

"The wrestling coach contacted me and set up a visit. Once I got here, it felt like a good fit," Chad said. "Everyone was friendly and positive. And when I started classes, I realized that everyone wants you to succeed in everything you do. My professors are very supportive and even attend my wrestling events to cheer me on."

Returning to Des Moines was an easy transition, and transferring to GV was simple. Grand View accepts up to 66 semester hours of transfer credit from junior and community colleges. The combination of Chad's scholarship and his financial aid package made the cost comparable to that of a large state school.

"My athletic scholarship was an added bonus that helped get me to Grand View; however, knowing what I know now, I would have come here regardless of a scholarship," Chad said.

Chad has watched the campus grow and change. Nothing is stagnant, and he's proud to say he's been part of that growth and Grand View's athletic success. Chad was the 2013 National Wrestling Champion (157 pounds), took third in the 2012 Nationals, was named the 2013 and 2012 NAIA All-American, was a 2013 NAIA Scholar-Athlete, named to the 2013 and 2012 NWCA/NAIA Academic Team, and was the 2013 National Qualifying Tournament Champion.

"I have a huge support system made up of my professors, family, coaches, teammates and even athletes from other teams," Chad explained. "We want each other to succeed, so we support not just our own team but all GV teams. When I came to Grand View, things turned around for me. I learned to balance being an athlete with my academic responsibilities - which always come first. When you go to class and make the right choices, that transfers over into your athletic life, and you can give it your all. You can't skip class and then expect to do well in practice. When you do well in class, then you will do well on the mat or the court or the field, and in your life outside Grand View."

MAJOR

Institute for Study Abroad (DIS), Todd spent two terms abroad. He discovered that school in Copenhagen is similar to GV except he commuted by train daily, and some of his classes traveled to different countries as part of their study.

"The Danish grading system is a bit more difficult. I noticed few students received high grades," Todd explained. "But the experiences I had were incredible."

While in Denmark, Todd lived with a host family. His "family" took him in as one of their own and immersed him in Danish life. Todd remarks that the best part of his whole overseas experience was living with his host family and truly becoming part of their family.

"I've grown as a person and view the world completely differently," Todd said. "It's one of the best things a college student will ever do. The experiences you get far outweigh the cost, and the people you meet are some of the most incredible people you will ever know. It's the best decision I've made."

Todd's interest in graphic design and the encouragement from his high school art teacher led him to Grand View and our graphic design program. He searched for a college where he could play baseball and get the education he needed for his future career. Grand View's state-of-the-art facilities in the Rasmussen Center for Community Advancement Professions – which include two Mac labs, painting and drawing studios, a critique room, a special projects room and a exhibition gallery – have made his academic experience enjoyable, challenging, and most importantly, applicable to his intended career.

"Grand View is perfect for me; I've learned so much and had so many opportunities," Todd said.

BRYCE ADGER, BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION MAJOR

BEING A STUDENT-ATHLETE CAN BE CHALLENGING but it's do-able according to track athlete and business major Bryce.

"Everyone at Grand View wants you to succeed, which helps make being a student-athlete manageable," Bryce explains. "Not only does it look good on my resume, but it helps keep me focused, physically and mentally healthy, and has brought me some success as well."

Bryce was recruited from his home state of Texas as a GV football player and later transitioned over to the track team. As a track athlete, he is a decathlete and has been a conference champion in four events, anchor for the All-American 4x4 team, and placed fourth at Nationals.

campus in the middle of a snow storm, and I signed that day. Everything about Grand View was right for me. And I wanted to get away from home, be independent and discover who I was."

"I didn't think I would go to college, but then I was recruited," Bryce said. "I visited

As an athlete, Bryce takes advantage of the exclusive athlete weight room and trains at GV's stadium. The Viking strength and conditioning room features ten Power Lift stations; more than 9,000 lbs of plates, dumb bells, and bars. Athletes also have access to Sisam Arena and the Charles S. Bryce is an RA and puts his business skills to use sponsoring and promoting campus and residential events. He also helped co-found a student organization and is part of the business club, Phi Beta Lambda.

"I've always been the type to just jump right in," Bryce said. "Being involved on campus and having my teammates and roommates there for support and encouragement has been great. There really isn't any room for homesickness with everything going on around campus and in my classes."

ALY MERSCHMAN, DIGITAL MEDIA PRODUCTION & POLITICAL STUDIES MAJOR

ALY IS ALL ABOUT INVOLVEMENT and making the most of her time at Grand View. She started out with a major in broadcast, discovered a passion for radio, and eventually developed an interest in political science.

From day one, Aly was involved with the dance team, which she had the opportunity to captain, gaining valuable teamwork, management and cooperation skills. She learned right off the bat that high school athletics and college athletics are completely different.

"When you're recruited, you have the chance to receive athletic scholarships, which is really nice because you don't have a lot of extra time outside of class, studying, practice and workouts for a part-time job," Aly said. "However, as a student-athlete, you learn time management, and you get to take advantage of several perks student-athletes get – like the strength and conditioning coach, moving onto campus early, and competing at state, regional and national levels."

Aly also participates in many campus organizations such as Team GV where she gives campus tours to new and prospective students and provides them with a real-life student perspective. As a GV United member, she works with the alumni relations staff to help keep alumni connected to GV. She also runs the GV radio station. She organizes student shows and hosts her own show each week. As a work-study – which is a paid position on campus – she helps broadcast students edit video.

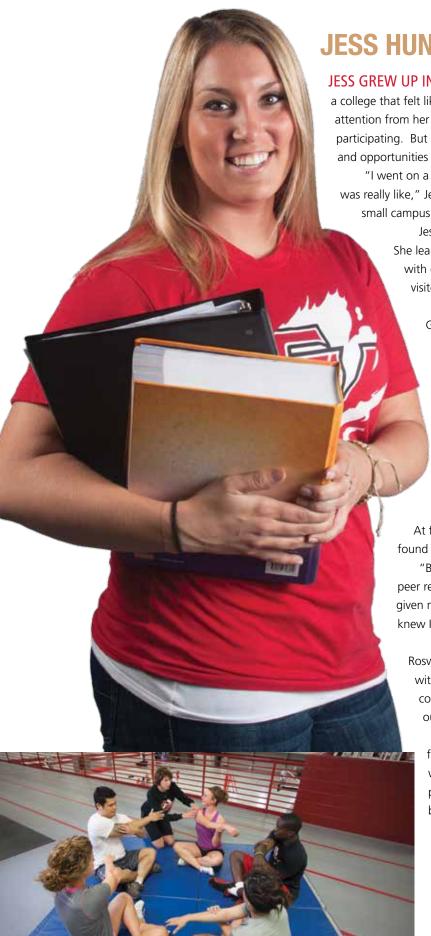

Even though Aly lived just east of Des Moines, she wanted to live on campus, and she's glad she did. She made strong connections with her roommates and got in on the excitement that happens after class gets out.

"I definitely recommend living on campus – that's where all the exciting and really fun stuff happens!" Aly said. "I made so many friends. That probably wouldn't have happened if I didn't live on campus. And I was able to participate in fun events for residential students."

Along with her campus involvement, Aly was excited to experience the real-world. A representative from Clear Channel offered her an internship position, which she eagerly accepted. For an entire summer, she assisted with KISS 107 programming and tracked radio logs, while also getting a behind-the-scenes glimpse at what a career in radio really looked like.

"Having that big-name company on my resume will have a big impact and look good to potential employers," Aly said. "I'm glad I had that experience, and my professors with their Des Moines connections helped me get it."

JESS HUNOLD, NURSING MAJOR

JESS GREW UP IN DONNELLSON, A SMALL IOWA TOWN. She wanted a college that felt like family, where she would have opportunities for individual attention from her professors and smaller classes where she felt comfortable participating. But she also wanted to be near or in a larger city with many events and opportunities available outside of class.

"I went on a campus tour, met some professors and got to see what campus was really like," Jess said. "Everyone was welcoming, and I could definitely feel the small campus family environment my guide told me about."

Jess visited Grand View a second time during Nursing Action Day.

She learned more about the nursing program and actually experimented with different nursing tools in the on-site Center for Learning, and visited with current nursing students.

"After that action day visit there was no doubt about it — Grand View was right for me," Jess said. "And transitioning from my small-town life to life in a metro city was actually pretty easy! Des Moines has so much to offer, and Grand View is like its own little community where I actually felt like I was living in a small town in the middle of a big city. I also looked forward to living on my own, and living at GV is one of the best decisions I've made."

From her first year on campus, Jess immersed herself in student activities. She's been involved with Viking Volunteers, Stand Up To Cancer, Team GV, View Crew and Student Leadership Team, as well as the Nursing Student Association.

At first she joined these organizations to meet people, but she soon found herself getting so much more out of them.

"Being involved has provided me the chance to attend retreats, build peer relationships, and find out more about myself," Jess said. "It's given me opportunities to try new things and discover things I never knew I enjoyed...but that's what college is all about."

Jess was offered an eight-week internship in oncology at the Roswell Park Cancer Institute in New York. Her balanced involvement with campus organizations and academics demonstrated her commitment to education and proved that she was willing to step outside her comfort zone.

"I spent four weeks in the Intermediate Care Unit and another four weeks on the Hematology Oncology floor," Jess explained. "I was able to strengthen my hands-on skills, as well as have more patient and co-worker interaction. I feel I am more than ready to begin my career as an oncology nurse."

WRESTLING ATHLETES MAKE A DIFFERENCE IN TORNADO-RAVAGED OKLAHOMA

The GV wrestling program seized the opportunity to demonstrate its championship lifestyle off the mat and make a difference in the lives of many affected by tragedy.

After the tornadoes that devastated Oklahoma in May, eight wrestling members and assistant coach Jordaryl Logan joined the Journey Church to form a disaster relief team that traveled to Moore, Okla., to assist in disaster relief. The tornado in Moore was the largest tornado to hit the area, claiming the lives of 23 and injuring 377.

"It wasn't just the destruction of homes, but the livelihoods of these people that were destroyed," said Logan.

An elderly couple was fortunate not to have their home completely destroyed, but the exterior was badly damaged, covered in fallen trees and debris. Logan described the experience of helping this couple as one of the most rewarding and fulfilling experiences he's had.

"With the use of GV manpower and machine saws, we helped clear the property" Logan said. "Those people were so grateful for our help; they even offered to cook us dinner."

The relief team was among the first responders to provide assistance to flood victims returning to their homes. They came prepared with medical and cleaning supplies, food, and personal hygiene items.

The team partnered with the American Red Cross and made a second trip to Oklahoma and assisted the organization in the distribution of flyers and continued cleanup assistance.

"Going into it, we weren't really sure what we'd be doing, and we were intimidated by the magnitude of the damage, as well as the extreme heat. In the end, all the hard work was worth it," Logan said. Gv

VIKING TEAMS PACK 1-2 PUNCH

GV athletics continue to grab national attention with three Viking teams ranked among the top two in the nation.

The two-time national champion wrestling team is ranked the No. 1 team in the NAIA Top 20 Preseason Poll. The Vikings, in their sixth season of competition, won back-to-back national championships in 2012 and 2013. GV has three top-ranked individuals - national champions Gustavo Martinez (141 pounds) and Eric Thompson (285 pounds), and 2013 national runner-up Isaiah Tatum (149 pounds).

The men's soccer team has been ranked in the NAIA Top 25 every week in 2013. They earned the program's highest ranking of No. 1 in October and have maintained that ranking for two weeks. They upset two top-five teams en route to the top spot.

In its sixth year, Viking football is one of four teams in the nation that remain undefeated in 2013. GV kicked off its season with a win over NCAA Div I Drake University and has handled four NAIA Top 25 teams, including defending national champion Marian (Ind.), to achieve the program's highest rating of No. 2 in the nation. At 8-0, 4-0 MSFA Midwest, the Vikings are on their way to making the program's second playoff appearance. Gv

YACINICH TO RECEIVE 2014 ROBERT E. SMITH

The National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics (NAIA) Baseball Coaches Association (BCA) executive committee selected head baseball coach, Lou Yacinich, as the 2014 recipient of the Robert E. Smith Achievement Award. Yacinich will receive the award January 3 during the Rawlings-NAIA Baseball Hall of Fame and Honors Luncheon at the American Baseball Coaches Association (ABCA) Convention in Dallas, Texas. The Smith Award is presented to an outstanding NAIA coach or administrator who demonstrated unselfish promotion of NAIA baseball.

"Coach has dedicated the majority of his lifetime serving NAIA college athletics," Scott Dulin, NAIA-BCA Past President and USA Baseball Liaison, said. "He directly – or indirectly – makes baseball the best experience he can. One comment of Lou's that really stuck out was when he told me, 'If the other coaches in the NAIA think I can help NAIA Baseball and all the players that play NAIA baseball, then it's my duty and my chance to make it better.'" baseball coach for 39 years – the longest tenure among active NAIA coaches – and owns a career record of 1,024 – 717 (.589) with the Vikings, which ranks fifth on the active coaching wins list. He is one of 15 NAIA coaches to record more than 1,000 victories. Yacinich led the Vikings to three NAIA World Series appearances, three NAIA Baseball Championship Opening Rounds, seven Midwest Collegiate Conference Championships and eight District 15 crowns. He is a member of the NAIA Baseball Hall of Fame, ABCA Hall of Fame, Grand View Hall of Fame, and the Iowa High School Baseball Coaches Association Hall of Fame.

In addition to his coaching duties, Yacinich devoted his time throughout all aspects of NAIA baseball. Peaking as NAIA-BCA President in 2011-12, Yacinich has been an officer and served on many NAIA baseball committees. He has been a member of the NAIA World Series Games Committee, while also serving as the 1992-95 events host.

"I've had the pleasure to work with Lou in many capacities and have developed a great respect for him as a person and a coach," Troy Plummer, GV director of athletics, said. "He works to uphold the integrity of the game and is uncompromising in his values. He impresses upon his athletes the impact that participating in baseball can have on their development as young men. It's never about winning or losing with Lou; it's about having a positive impact on his players and helping them develop into productive citizens in the community."

NATIONAL ALUMNI COUNCIL

It's very exciting to see the changes happening on campus right now. When I come back to visit, I can't believe the opportunities, luxuries, and beautiful facilities students have access to. Even though GV has grown and will continue to do so, I still get the same feelings of comfort and support that drew me to the college in the first place.

In 1994, Grand View welcomed me and provided opportunities to do things I never thought possible. I envisioned college to be somewhat lonely and confusing, but when I visited campus I knew this was the place for me. My professors, peers, and the staff became my second-family and my college dorm room truly became home. At that time, the campus didn't have a place to buy gourmet coffee or fresh bagels, top-notch educational facilities, or a state-of-the art athletic and fitness facility. We did, however, have a simple grill where the sour cream fries could make any day better, an older gym where you could burn off calories on some pretty dated equipment, and campus was small enough that you knew just about everyone. Those days were simple, yet memorable, and will forever hold a special place in my heart.

GV introduced me to my husband of 15 years and several friends that I cannot imagine living life without. I also found my love for writing and my leadership skills. How many college students can tell you ghost stories about Old Main, say they painted a rock in the middle of the night, or that their Homecoming game was soccer and not football?

As a proud alumna, I cannot help but get a little giddy as all of these new structures and student activities turn GV into a work of art. GV may look dramatically different on the surface, but those of us who love this university know that deep down nothing has changed at all.

HOMECOMING POLICE ON THE DATE OF STREET OF STR

The annual celebration began Friday morning with a continental breakfast and the opening Alumni College session. Afterward, guests were invited on a campus tour featuring the recent additions and renovations. The afternoon began with lunch in Knudsen Hall followed by another Alumni College session. Guests rounded out the afternoon by attending a class, enjoying their 50-year class reunion (class of 1963), and a songfest with the GV choir.

Friday evening featured the President's Club Dinner at the Hilton Garden Inn in Johnston. During dinner, an alumnus was inducted into the Athletic Hall of Fame and four others received alumni awards. (Alumni award winners are recognized on pages 20-21.)

Saturday morning kicked off the 21st annual Viking 5K and Kid Trot, and the annual alumni baseball and women's volleyball games. Other highlights included an open house featuring Elings Science Hall renovations and Viking Theater facelift. Despite a few rain drops, alumni and friends were invited to a complimentary tailgate at Williams Stadium before the football kickoff against St. Francis.

The GV Choir and Instrumental Ensemble performed during the Sunday worship service at Luther Memorial Church. Guests were invited to the fellowship hall for brunch. The alumni softball game at the Luhrs Athletic Complex – a new addition to the Homecoming festivities – rounded out the weekend. A few weeks after Homecoming weekend, the men's and women's soccer teams hosted another year of successful alumni games. Gv have you been at Grand View?" It's a common question posed to me from those I have known for many years as well as someone I am meeting for the first time. My response of thirteen years usually elicits a tone of surprise. In today's world, thirteen years is generally looked upon as a long time. And while it is a long time in my life, it's only 11% in the rich history of Grand View.

Over the summer, we put together a map illustrating all the improvements that have occurred on campus since President Henning arrived in 2000. It's a great pictorial of how Grand View has changed in nearly every area of campus. Much of that change is directly attributed to the generous support of our alumni and friends. We began with the Luhrs Athletic Complex and the Johnson Wellness Center, which led to more student housing, academic space improvements, more scholarships, a larger endowment, a master's program, a jump in enrollment, and, most recently, the Rasmussen Center and Grand Central Plaza.

All of these improvements have enhanced the student experience, enabling more graduates to make a difference in our communities. The donors listed on the following pages can take pride in knowing their investment is making a difference, too. On behalf of the faculty, staff and students, I thank you for your continued support and for helping us keep Grand View moving forward.

Grand View University

Grand View continues to grow and thrive in our community; more than 8,000 alumni live in and around the area. They are increasingly creating and leading significant institutions and initiatives in the region. Grand View success stories saturate the Des Moines area in the private and public arenas, lifting up the standard of living, increasing cultural opportunities and awareness for residents and the many visitors to the capitol city. The goal of the Des Moines Difference Makers is to call attention to alumni who are taking what they learned as students and what they have absorbed in the real world to make a difference in Des Moines.

SCOTT C. CIRKSENA '88, MAYOR FOR CITY OF CLIVE; KENWORTH TRUCK CO., SR. DISTRICT SALES MANAGER

How did GV help you discern your purpose in life?

The educational experience and the relationships I developed at GV helped me establish priorities early on that helped me much later in life. The idea that hard work is rewarded, that being active in your community is not only an opportunity but an obligation, that leading by example is the best way to lead, are such priorities that caused me to seek elected office. I wanted to be involved in community stakeholder organizations and developed a desire to be involved in the future of GV.

How is Grand View most important to the Des Moines community?

GV is an integral part of the metro community. Not only does GV draw in students from the local area, but it returns many of those students back into the local professions that make up our community. It is a distinguished role that GV plays very well and seems to get better at every year.

In what ways have you become involved in your community because of your experiences at Grand View?

GV leadership has made other community leaders part of their governance system, which has enhanced their working relationship with local business and the community at large. GV has chosen to be a visible participant in the community and this rising tide does lift all boats in terms of economic, social and cultural impact. The growth of GV, particularly over the last fifteen years, in refining its mission, facilities expansion, program enhancement, and community outreach has set an example for me personally to not be afraid to aim higher with my individual, career and public service goals.

TONY WILSON '76, APPLIED ART & TECHNOLOGY, PARTNER

Tony is a founding partner of Applied Art & Technology in Des Moines, Iowa. Since its inception in 1993, Applied Art has grown to become one of the region's largest and most respected film, video and new media production companies. He serves on the board of the Boys and Girls Club and is past president of the Urbandale Swim Club. He was named the 2008 Distinguished Alumni, and was awarded the only medal given by the New York International Film Festival in 2003 for direction of the short film, I Remember in 2008. In 2007, he also produced the feature film The Final Season.

How did Grand View help you discern your purpose in life?

I was not very scholarly but everyone said you need a college degree. I was interested in film, and Grand View was perfect because not only was it affordable, but it also helped confirm my passion for media.

How is Grand View most important to the Des Moines community?

Every community has a responsibility to train the next pack of leaders, and if you look out across the community, state and country, GV is very well represented in the halls of corporate America.

How have the values you learned as a member of the Grand View community continued to be important to your personal and public roles in society?

I wasn't a Lutheran, but I did have a strong faith background, which I feel is an important aspect in any educational institution, and one that is getting lost on the greater society as a whole. We need to preserve that at all costs. GV welcomes all faiths and encourages students to pursue and act on their faiths.

How did GV's emphasis on engaging in a community with others help you to engage in your community?

During many of the classes I took we were encouraged to collaborate with others and think our way through problems. There was one science class I remember in particular where the group I worked with had the right mix of skills to solve just about any problem handed to us. It was a good lesson; I have been in a successful partnership for the last 20 years, and most partnerships last less than ten years.
